Sure, all eyes were on Kate Middleton's Sarah Burton for Alexander McQueen dress. But unless you're getting married, no need to go there. If you want to emulate England's newest princess, a bunch of companies have jumped on the royal bandwagon to create duplicates of Kate's gorgeous drop earrings by celeb UK

jeweler Robinson Pelham. Yes, Kate's were the real McCoy, commissioned by her parents as a wedding present. But you can go to HSN.com for great copies as well as carolee.com starting at just $49.95. Thank goodness for cubic zirconia.

Madison Square Park's fragrance is as lovely as the packaging (the bottle has a removable Deco Modern rose-blossom bracelet): Think spring, with accents of jasmine and hyacinth and underlying red berry, for an appropriate dash of sweet. The collection begins at $90, www.bondno9.com.

Tune in

Stevie Nicks fans are in for a double Nicks fix Tuesday when the singer-songwriter releases the stellar "In Your Dreams," her first solo album in 10 years. At 8 p.m. on Fox, "Glee" dedicates an episode to the music from Fleetwood Mac's 1977 classic, "Rumours," making it the first time the popular series has dedicated an episode to a single album. Listen for Mac mate Lindsey Buckingham on "Soldier's Angel." "Glee" star Matthew Morrison and returning guest Kristen Chenoweth are also set to duet on Nicks' hit
